Last month, Officer Lee fell down at a breakfast shop. The owner helped him by calling 119 right away. What a nice woman, right? Wrong, because the police found out something about her, and it was really terrible.

When the doctor at the hospital checked Officer Lee, she found a problem. He got sick because there was too much salt in his body. After that, she asked him about his eating habits. Three weeks later, the police caught the breakfast shop owner and threw her into jail.

When the police questioned the owner, she told them everything. She said, "Years ago, I sold breakfast on the street corner every morning to make money for my three kids. Officer Lee gave me a ticket every time, so I really hated him. Then, when he came to my shop to eat, I would put a little more salt in his hamburgers to teach him a lesson."
